

RED CROSS REPORT

SPLENDID SHOWING TOLD BY COMMITTEE CHAIRMEN MONDAY NIGHT

Last evening at the home of Mr. J. H. Braly, Chairman, the Executive Committee of the Glendale Branch A. R. C. met to listen to reports and to take up new business.

Quite the most important report was that of Mrs. R. E. Chase, Chairman of Membership, who announced that the present membership in Glendale and Casa Verdugo is 931. She also told that the "drive" had not been quite finished, as there is still some untouched territory in the central part of the city, especially in Districts Six and Nine. It was officially decided to continue the special effort to secure new members through another week, all the team captains and workers having expressed their willingness to continue their efforts.

Mr. McCrea reported that those in authority had informed him that we could expect recognition as a "Chapter" if we reached a membership of 1000, which we fully expect to do in a few days. He was instructed to take steps to consummate this much to be desired change.

Mrs. John Robert White referred to the occasional misunderstanding of the scope of the work of the Red Cross and laid emphasis on the matter of Civilian Relief. Mr. McCrea told that there were four departments of Red Cross activity—for the Army, the Navy, Prisoners of War and Dependent Civilians. Mrs. White then moved, seconded by Mrs. Ocker, that a Committee on Civilian Relief be appointed and that Mrs. Wm. Herman West be invited to take charge of this and to consolidate the excellent work she and her associates already have done in this line.

Mrs. H. S. Duffield gave an excellent report for her team and told of having collected several pounds of tin foil for the Red Cross. This is now worth 80 cents a pound and following the lead of the Los Angeles Chapter, Mrs. Braly appointed Mrs. Duffield "Chairman of Tinfoil" amid much merriment. Mrs. Duffield asks all Glendaleans to save tin-foil and to turn it in for the Red Cross.

Doctor Henry R. Harrower gave a splendid report on the result of the Garden Party, at which nearly $110.00 was raised. He mentioned that the Elks, through their chaplain, Rev. C. Irving Mills, had offered to repeat an entertainment for the Red Cross, and this generous offer was accepted unanimously. Mrs. J. R. White told of an open-air dance which she and some of her neighbors were planning, which will come off shortly.

A vote of thanks was passed to Mr. and Mrs. Chas. H. Toll for the use of their beautiful grounds last Friday, to the performers for their assistance (already officially passed on to each of them), to Mr. C. O. Pulliam for his generous work in bringing seats to the party, to the Glendale Music Co. for the loan of a fine Edison Phonograph, and to Mrs. Herman Paine and her assistants for their profitable service in the refreshment corner.

Mr. Francis Booth also received a vote of thanks for his excellent iced tea, which was supplied without cost and sold during the band concert last Saturday night at a profit of several dollars.

Glendale's Red Cross is ALIVE; it is doing things rapidly. We are proud of it and feel a still greater incentive to attempt more, and still more. Are you doing your bit, too?

DR. BOYER TAKES POST GRADUATE WORK

Dr. H. Russell Boyer, who went east some weeks ago for a post graduate review in the sciences of medicine and surgery at Johns Hopkins hospital, the New York Post Graduate medical school and the Mayo Brothers clinic of Rochester, writes to friends from Baltimore that he is enjoying the work very much, but that he misses the California climate. He says it has been quite warm in Baltimore the past week and that he will appreciate Glendale more than ever when he returns.

DEATH OF MRS. EMMA MOSES

Mrs. Emma Moses, mother of Mrs. A. Baum, 526 N. Glendale avenue, Tropic, passed away Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock. One of her daughters, Mrs. Abe Abrahamson of New Orleans, La., arrived in time to be with her before the end came. The funeral took place at the family residence at 10 o'clock a. m. Monday.

WEATHER FORECAST—Fair tonight and Wednesday.

FAREWELL PARTY

The departure of Miss Lucy Pohnert of Pasadena for St. Paul, Minn., this week to spend her summer vacation, furnished the motif for a very pleasant party at the home of Mrs. C. L. Mount, 1009 Maple avenue. Mrs. Mount and Miss Pohnert are fellow teachers in the Macy street school, Los Angeles, and the guests were largely those who are connected with the school. It was a great pleasure to them to honor one of their members and also to visit Mrs. Mount in her home in beautiful Glendale.

A most charming effect was secured by a profusion of pink and white sweet peas, carnations and smilax most tastefully arranged.

The guests who enjoyed Mrs. Mount's hospitality were: the Misses Nora Sterry, Mary Howard, Catherine Hoppe, Cassia Scott, M. Newhart, Helen Des Granges, Margaret Duke, Tressa Pette, Ruth Dehn, Rebecca Hutton, Alice Rhodes, Etta Brown, Mabel Stahmer, E. Page Kerns, Mabel Willebrandt, Edith Holmes, Mrs. Catherine House, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace, Mr. and Mrs. Jessie Ingram, Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Maher, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Flick.

HORSE RUNS AWAY

In this age of so many automobiles there is really something novel about a horse running away. Tuesday forenoon a black horse belonging to the Los Angeles Basket Company at Tropic, decided to have a little exercise on Brand boulevard, and to make things more interesting Mr. Horse exhibited his speed propensities in the business part of the city. The horse was hitched to a low wheeled wagon and was driven by E. Fram. The starting place was at about 121 West First street. The run was made west on First street to Brand and then south on Brand to Broadway, where the animal ceased his running on account of the clever assistance of J. Hayes, of the Glendale Transfer Company, who showed by his actions that he has had experience in handling runaway horses.

Mr. Fram was quite sure that everything would have ended well even if the horse had not been caught by Mr. Hayes, but however this may be, sometimes it is best to throw away all question of doubt as to how a runaway horse will end his program, and make a long story short.

The building inspector reports the following permits issued: Two cottages, 436 and 438 Franklin court, owner J. C. Rieger, builder, L. L. Newern. These cottages will cost $1300 each.

SUNDAY CAMPAIGN

OPENING GUN TO BE FIRED IN GLENDALE WEDNESDAY EVENING

The opening gun in the Billy Sunday campaign, so far as Glendale is concerned, will be fired at 7:45 tomorrow night.

All the men of Glendale are invited and urged to attend at that hour a monster mass meeting of men at the First M. E. church, at which time Dr. Walker, the great Bible Class specialist, will be present and address the meeting. Those who have heard Dr. Walker, know that he has a thrilling story to tell, and no man in our city should fail to hear his message.

All the women in Glendale are invited to a similar meeting at the same hour in the First Baptist church, to be addressed by Dr. John Albert Eby, the executive secretary of the Billy Sunday campaign. In all the cities where the Sunday meetings are held, elaborate and effective plans are carried out whereby all the women of the section are enabled to come in contact with the great evangelist and his competent corps of workers. These plans will be explained by Dr. Eby and a great inspiration given to the work among women. Let all the women of our city plan to be present.

The following telegram from Mr. Sunday has been received by Dr. Eby, and should prove of great interest to the general public:

"Believing that the Ministers and Christian people of Los Angeles District desire above everything else to see a sweeping work of grace and that they are willing to pay the price in prayers and sacrifices and consecrated effort to the end that the churches may be quickened, sinners saved and God glorified, I have given you my promise to work with you, praying that God may abundantly bless our efforts and I am now turning my face and prayers towards your city by the sundown seas. The faith and abandonment with which you give yourself to the work ahead of you and the thoroughness with which you do the preliminary work which is the foundation of the Campaign will determine the final results. We have sent you Dr. Walker, a man who knows God; work with him and let us pray constantly for the Lord's guidance and blessing."

WILLIAM A. SUNDAY.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

MR. AND MRS. CHARLES M. WOOD ENTERTAIN IN HONOR OF FATHER

Mr. John M. Wood was honored Saturday evening, June 23, when his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Wood, entertained for him, the occasion being his birthday. The spacious rooms of the Wood home on Verdugo Road were festive in decorations of red and white carnations. Progressive whist was enjoyed during the evening, Mrs. N. A. Powers and Mr. James Lafferty winning first honors and Mrs. Graham and Mr. Wood receiving the consolation prizes.

A huge birthday cake decorated with candles which formed the American flag, was presented to Mr. Wood by the hostess, who had originated the idea as well as the toothsome confection. While the lights were turned out and the rooms were lit by the candles, the honored guest of the evening received the congratulations of the company and wishes for many happy returns of the day.

After dainty and delicious refreshments had been served, the guests assembled in the music room, where a number of vocal and piano selections were enjoyed.

Those invited to do honor to Mr. Wood and assist him in making this birthday a memorable one were: Mr. and Mrs. Rudel and son Charles, Mr. and Mrs. James Ewins, Mr. and Miss McLafferty, Mrs. N. A. The afternoon was devoted to playing auction bridge. Mrs. A. W. Beach was the fortunate winner of the club prize and Mrs. C. M. Good was the winner of the guest prize. Those entertained by Mrs. White on this pleasant occasion were Mrs. D. A. Smith, Mrs. D. Herbert Smith, Mrs. V. Price Brown, Mrs. A. W. Beach, Mrs. C. O. The elevation at Silver Lake is 8000 feet. Then on through Carson City to Lake Tahoe, Sacramento, and home by the coast. At Silver Lake Camp the 10th of June it froze ice four inches thick, and on the 16th it snowed at Lake Tahoe. Aside from picking up an eight penny nail in the tire, she had no other trouble. Miss Purnell was accompanied by Miss Mary Morgan and Mr. T. Morgan of Boston.

BUSINESS EQUILIBRIUM

Care should be taken not to throw the business of the country out of balance. Just at this time there is great excitement about the conservation of foods and a request has gone out that people abstain from the use of wheat bread upon certain days, and that on other days no meat should be eaten.

Business sense at once teaches us that thousands upon thousands of men and women are employed in producing the wheat bread, and should the request of those claiming to be in control of the food situation be granted, those employed in the manufacture and sale of bread will be thrown out of employment. What will become of the meat market men on the days that people are to abstain from eating meat? The real facts in the case are that an interference with food conditions will only cause an unrest among persons who are employed in the manufacture of the foods thus interfered with, and business will be thrown out of balance.

If there are foods which are too high priced, it is a good plan for those high in authority to use their influence to get the price right. If foods are being wasted it would be a good plan to recommend that the waste be overcome. If there is a shortage in production of certain foods, it is all right to encourage a greater production of the products that enter into these foods of which there is a scarcity.

By all means nobody should have the power to even request the masses of people to abstain from eating meat one or more days in the week, and much less should anybody have the power to even suggest that people abstain from eating any wholesome or nutritious food under present conditions. It is in place to make a study of food production and food consumption, but by all means do not encourage anybody to engage in a work that will unbalance business.

The meat market man has his regular daily expenses to meet for help, rent, ice, etc., and a day of no sales for him would mean a dead loss. A day lost by the bakers in the aggregate would amount to millions of dollars.

Present conditions tend to interfere with the equilibrium of business, and to do anything that will cause the non-use of staple products, will only tend to further unbalance business.

NEWSPAPER IS REAL MEDIUM OF PUBLICITY

It is needless to spend money in making experiments as to the best means of carrying on publicity work so long as there is a live local daily in the community. The throwing around of hand bills and advertising sheets in a promiscuous and careless manner tends to cheapen the business reputation of the firm which is responsible for littering up door yards and porches with printed matter that has been distributed without the consent of the owner of the property on which the bills have been distributed.

Reason out the unfairness of hand bill distribution for yourself and then, as a business man, you will never be guilty of littering up any door yard with advertising sheets.

In a city of the population of Glendale, with approximately 100 business houses, what would be the effect if all of these houses would decide to distribute weekly hand bills in the door yards of residents? The nuisance would be unbearable and there would immediately arise a protest against such actions.

It is fair to reason that if one merchant has a right to throw scraps of printed matter on a lawn without the consent of the owner, one hundred merchants will have the same rights as the one.

A newspaper is placed on the lawn by the order of the owner of the property where it is placed. It is picked up, carried into the house, is given a place on the reading table, and it serves as a reference sheet until the following day, when the next daily paper is received. In many instances the family keeps a file of the local daily and is able to refer to back numbers in a most systematic manner.

There is a very strong sentiment against the careless distribution of advertising sheets in the resident portions of every city, and in many cities there is an ordinance against such distribution. requiring the distributor to hand the bill to an occupant of the house at which the distribution is being made.

The newspaper is the recognized medium through which publicity should be conveyed to the people, and he who attempts to direct publicity through other channels may be compared to the man who makes the mistake of swimming up stream when better results might be obtained by swimming with the current.

In many of the most advanced communities the practice of distributing hand bills or advertising sheets, long since lost its effectiveness and the newspaper is sought for all publicity information. A few weeks ago a man of big business called the Evening News office by phone and asked if a certain line of merchandise is being sold in Glendale. The office answered in the affirmative. Then the reply came: Why does that house not carry an advertisement in the Evening News? The answer went back from the office that that firm does publicity by means of hand bills. "Well," replied the stranger, "I have not time to chase around in the door yards of your city to read what is on hand bills, but I am depending upon the Evening News for learning what business houses are in your city and what these business houses are offering for sale."

The columns of the Evening News are open to the advertisers of the city of Glendale, and if you wish to keep up the dignity of the publicity you do, there is no better way than to have the publicity go through the Evening News.

That shaded and torn printed sheet that clings to the rose bush was cast upon your lawn by a man who is soliciting your patronage, and these numerous scraps of paper that are held by the force of the wind against the lattice work on your porch are thrown in your door yard by the orders of men who claim to conduct neat and well-regulated places of business. Why should they pursue a course that will hinder you from keeping your premises neat and orderly?

EXPRESS OPINIONS KINDLY

The opinions of individuals should be expressed in a kindly and logical manner. The man without ideas is a poor excuse in this world. One suggestion will give rise to another suggestion. There are profound questions up for consideration before the people of the United States at the present time. Every individual has a right to think upon those questions, and he should be allowed to express his views upon the questions that are of so much importance to himself and his fellowmen.

There is a tendency for the easy talker to speak before he thinks; therefore it is very essential at a time when so many complex questions are before the people that those people who think first and then speak should have something to say.

The man who holds a neutral position in state and nation is sometimes better prepared to see things just as they should be seen and advise wisely than is the man who is confused on account of his close connections with controlling affairs.

EVERY MAN ON HIS JOB

Every man's duty is the same. Your job is your duty. My job is mine. Each of us can do his part most effectively by redoubling present endeavors at whatever his regular occupation may be.

If we are railroading, let us railroad for all we are worth. If we are farmers, put the same speed in our farming. If we are mining, let us mine as never before. Let us do the same with making shoes, making clothes, building houses, building factories, warehouses, skyscrapers, roads or whatever it may be.

There need be no curtailment in building and road construction. Let both public and private useful construction proceed. Production and handling of building materials and public and private construction work are fundamental industries of the country. Any tendency to suspend or postpone building projects is inconsistent with maintaining our prosperity. The country is prosperous. Building investors should not hesitate to go ahead with their plans. Railroads should spare no effort to supply the building industry with the cars needed to transport materials. Government, state, county and municipal authorities should encourage the continuance of all kinds of building. Road and street improvements in particular should go on unabated. Bad roads and streets are factors of first importance in the present high cost of foodstuffs. Never before was the improvement of highways so essential.

The lumber, brick, cement, lime, sand, gravel, stone and other building materials industries are basic. Neither government regulations nor railroad restrictions should be imposed unnecessarily to interfere with them. If any action is taken which results in the prostration of so fundamentally important industries, there is real danger of a surplus of railroad cars and a crippling of business that will seriously embarrass the government in financing the war. Keep on building!—Whittier News.

MANUFACTURERS AND THE WAR

The limit of our forbearance has now been reached, and we have been forced to enter the war thrust upon us by the autocracy of a great nation. Toward the German people, there can be no feeling of hatred; for, without doubt, an overwhelming majority of them abhor the war and execrate the author of it, while those who have been stirred to deeds of violence were incited by the false ideas and false ideals disseminated by the Imperial German government.

Why, then, do we fight? Because this same Imperial German government has forced war upon us; has ruthlessly destroyed the lives and property of our citizens; has incited the lawless elements of our population to riot and disorder; has plotted against our government and the peace and prosperity of our people. These alone are sufficient causes for any nation to wage war, but it would then be purely a war of revenge, and as such lacking in all that atones for the terrible waste of life. Realizing this, our government was not easily provoked to arms, did not enter the universal conflict until it was certain that the very principles and ideals upon which our government was founded were at stake. Then we took our stand to maintain—as far as it rests with human power—our high ideals of liberty and democracy, not only for ourselves but for all the world.

In fighting for such a principle, there can be no hatred or antagonism towards the people of any nation. Such a purpose calls out all that is best and highest, and to the manufacturers of the United States the appeal shall not be in vain. They pledge to the government all that they possess of material resources, to be organized and mobilized for its immediate needs; their services in the field of business and battle—and, if need be, their very lives. The offer is made without conditions, without reservations, without equivocation. We are confident that it represents the sentiment not only of the members of the National Association of Manufacturers, but of the manufacturers in every line of industry throughout the entire country.—From American Industries for May.

MAY RENAME LORDSBURG

The city of Lordsburg probably will within a few weeks be known by the more modern name of LaVerne. In other words, the two communities within the little city are to be consolidated and the entire population classed as LaVerne. Plans have been set afoot for several weeks to prevent future confusion in the city. About half the population live in what is known as Lordsburg and the other half in LaVerne.

A church house in a certain rural district was sadly in need of repairs. The official board had called a meeting of the parishioners to see what could be done toward raising the necessary funds. A middle-aged man, known to be one of the wealthiest and at the same time one of the stingiest of the adherents of that church, arose and said that he would give five dollars, and sat down.

Just then a bit of plastering fell from the ceiling and hit him squarely upon the head. Whereupon he jumped up, looked confused, and said: "I—er—I meant I'll give fifty dollars!" then again resumed his seat.

After a brief silence a voice in the back of the room was heard to say: "O, Lord, hit 'im again."—National Monthly.

COMRADE R. M. SHERMAN

There is a deep sense of sorrow, on our part, in the departure of our dear Comrade Sherman, and we find ourselves saying, oh, why did he go? what seems to us so soon, and yet we submit to the will of Him Who doeth all things well, saying nevertheless His will be done and not ours.

Comrade Sherman was a charter member of our Post and much beloved by all. A man of pure character and of high endeavor, he was faithful in all the relations of life.

As a husband father he was greatly beloved. As a soldier he was brave and faithful to duty, never asking why but answering every call to duty in the spirit of a true soldier. He met the duties of citizen life in a way that commended him to all who knew him.

We do herein express our high appreciation of his character and life with the heroic service rendered to the cause of God and humanity.

We bring to his family our most sincere sympathy and soldierly love.

We pledge ourselves to a faithful performance of all the duties of life for which he so nobly stood.

C. R. NORTON,

J. J. WEILER,

THOMAS GILLETTE,

TREES—AND SOME OTHER THINGS

"I think that I shall never see
A poem—lovely as a tree—
A tree whose hungry mouth is pressed

Against the earth's sweet flowing breast.

A tree that looks at God all day
And lifts her leafy arms to pray;

A tree that may in summer wear
A nest of robins in her hair;

Upon whose bosom snow has lain,
Who intimately lives by rain.

Poems are made by fools like me,
But only God can make a tree."

The above poem was sent to me 2500 miles by a niece, accompanied by the comment, "Now, isn't that a dainty little spring poem? I cut it from one of a bundle of papers I was looking over, in which 'Joyce Kilmer' was given as author."

Thank you for sending it. I am not familiar with Miss Gilmer as a writer, but she piles it on somewhat "Joaquin Miller-ish," but the tree can probably stand it. Speaking of trees, how about those on your own village property, "Sue"? More than a half dozen of them, 3 and 4 feet in diameter, and one hundred or more feet high? You feel reasonably safe in a hammock, so far as end supports are concerned, cabled to these giant trunks, 30 or more feet apart. Swinging or holding down a rustic stool, good points to observe while taking a late breakfast. "Squirrels make a regular playground of our yard," she writes, "and give us some delightful performances, while the gate posts of the east gate each is ornamented with a robin. In decayed parts of the branches of these giant trees the sapsucker finds his home and so do other birds, and from an old decayed snag of a tree broken by the wind I saw for several succeeding years just how an owl of modest size took care of a brood in a small aperture in this wreck of a tree. She usually sat in this home, face out, and you had to look sharp or you would overlook her entirely. This owl family was destructive of mice and protected by the cottage owner for that reason. Her gray, feathery face and eyes off the same piece, just filled the aperture, and I don't think she ever winked, though aware you were staring at her."

The removal of the native forests gave birth to a craze for making our cities, streets and parks embryo forests, by carefully preserving all shapely native trees and carefully cultivating the fast-growing ones, until our cities have in larger measure taken the place of the destroyed forests in furnishing homes for birds and squirrels. Many cities in the middle west and further east vie with each other in saving where possible the original trees. Some of these are immense in size, and squirrels and birds are protected. Recall the tree life in the older cities of Illinois—Jacksonville, Springfield, Rockford, Galesburg and others. Observation made at Davenport, Iowa, will do for all the others by shading a little. I noted the pains they took to spare a noble native tree by curving the grade of a fine street through a new section. This gave an air of quaint picturesqueness to the city which, having more hills than Rome, is really one of the most beautiful of cities. And here, too, I found the squirrel much at home and very friendly, willing to investigate for himself the contents of your overcoat pocket.

SAMUEL PARKER.

"My brother bought a motor here last week," said an angry man to the salesman that stepped up to greet him, "and he said if anything broke you would supply him with new parts."

"Certainly," said the salesman.

"What does he want?"

"He wants two deltoid muscles, a couple of kneecaps, one elbow, and about a half a yard of cuticle," said the man, "and he wants them at once."—Christian Register.

In the daily routine of life you ask of those with whom you come in contact both honesty and fairness of treatment.

More so, than ever, do you need such help during the sorrows of bereavement. Then, as at no other time, you ask and have a right to expect conscientious service—the kind "you" yourself would give were you able to do so.

You ask and expect an impressive service, free of needless expense, yet fitting the occasion.

In using Scovern-Letton-Frey Co. service either in our mortuary, at the church or in your own home, you will find all these requirements met—quietly, restfully and in good taste.

NAVY TORPEDO SPEAKS FOR ITSELF

Well! Well! Well! I am surprised! With all the notoriety that I have gained and the destruction that I have caused, that nobody would tell you what I am made of and what I am capable of doing!

I am 21 feet in length and 21 inches in diameter and ordinarily I am assembled in three parts known as the tail and afterbody, the flask and the head. My tail contains the machinery which turns the propellers that force me through the water; the flask carries my fuel in the form of compressed air that sends me on my mission of destruction—and when I start—woe unto them who may be in my path, for I am the most dreaded weapon that ever sailed the seven seas. I cost $9000 and can run for ten thousand yards before my energy is used up, traveling that distance at the rate of about 50 feet per second. I am a monster made of forged nickel steel and weigh 2,000 pounds and have turbine engines which are capable of making 1760 revolutions per minute. In my head I carry a high explosive called gun cotton which explodes upon contact. In times of peace when I am practiced with, the gun cotton is taken out of my head and water is substituted to compensate for its weight. When I have been fired in practice and have made my run and expended all my energy, I have lost sufficient weight to float to the surface until I am picked up, recharged and refired.

I will never forget the time that I was fired in practice off the coast of Panama at a place called Chiriki Lagoon, when, instead of completing my run as usual, I left the boat, ran quite a distance and then sank to the bottom. The Navy gunners on board the submarine were having their semi-annual torpedo practice and the night before they made all preparations to fire me the next morning. They charged me up with air and made all adjustments on my machinery and then put me into the torpedo tube, where I spent the night.

In the morning, bright and early, before breakfast, the gunners came down and pulled me out of my tube, went over their adjustments of the previous day and recharged my flask to its full capacity as the pressure of air had decreased with its cooling over night. I was then shoved back into the tube, the door was closed and locked and there I was in total darkness. Scarcely two hours had passed when, all of a sudden, the front gate of the torpedo tube was opened and the sea rushed in and I was totally covered with water from the Caribbean Sea. The next thing I knew was that I was shot out of my resting place and into the open sea and I immediately went down to a depth of 15 feet and raced along through the water at a terrific speed for a distance of about three miles when I found that I had lost all my motive power and started to come up. After reaching the surface I discovered that a drain plug was missing from my air flask which permitted the water to enter so rapidly that my buoyancy was destroyed and I sank to the bottom before the boat's crew from the submarine had a chance to come to my rescue.

Having struck the bottom head first I sank several feet into the soft mud of the lagoon. The diver was lowered to the bottom about fifty feet from where I went down and I could see him cautiously advancing, the current being so strong that he had great difficulty in walking and had to bend over so as to offer less resistance to it and every time he would lift his foot his sight would be blurred by the clouds of mud. He finally became tired and gave the signal to come up. After resting a short while he descended again to continue his search for me and after walking around for an hour or so he sat down on the bottom to get his bearings. When he started out again he headed directly for me and stopped within five feet of me. Now all this time I was covered with mud and wishing that he would find me and bring me up and I would have given anything to have been able to cry out and let him know where I was, as I could tell from the way he was reconnoitering that he was making a final attempt for that day to locate me. At last he received a signal from above to discontinue the search until the next day and there I had to lay all that night. The following morning, bright and early, my friend, the diver, came looking for me again. He looked and looked without success and towards evening went away again and I thought I was doomed to stay there for the rest of my life, for this was the second night I had spent in the mud. The following morning my attention was attracted to something dark and bulky hanging lowered down to the bottom, and behold! It was my friend the diver, being lowered right down on top of me. He was surprised himself, he saw the hole that I had made and stooped down and scooped a few handfuls of mud away and there I was in full sight of him. I could imagine his feelings upon finding me after a search of two days. He sent the good news up above to his tenders and it was no time before he had a spade and was removing the mud from around me so as to enable him to secure a line to my body. This was quickly done and I was soon hoisted up and placed on board the submarine again where the gunners went to work on me, wiped my body off nicely and with several sheets of emery cloth removed the coat of rust that had formed while I was at the bottom of the sea, and I was once again put back in my old place, shining like a new silver dollar and ready for another shot. I had been laying in my cradle over night, when the next morning, at the usual early hour, I noticed the naval gunners rigging up tackles and chain-falls and I knew that preparations were being made to send me out for another run.

The first thing I knew they were hauling me out towards the middle of the deck, and had a steady line secured to both ends of my cradle to prevent me from rolling from one side of the boat to the other as the sea outside was very choppy. A large copper pipe was screwed into my air flask, the air-compressor back in the engine room was started and the compressed air was forced into my flask, singing like a humming bird as it went in. After a half hour's time I was charged to my fullest capacity, having 2,400 pounds pressure bearing on all sides of my steel body. The air-compressor was then stopped, the valve in my body closed to prevent the escape of air, and the copper charging pipe was then removed. After the torpedo men had made the necessary adjustments to my rudders, my cradle was unlashed and I was again drawn up into the torpedo tube by a cable. After being snugly fitted into my old place I began to worry, thinking that I might again go to the bottom of the sea. I was suddenly awaked from my reverie by the rush of water into the tube and before I knew it I had been expelled from my resting place by a pressure of compressed air behind my tail and once again I was forced out into the briny deep. As I passed from the tube my starting lever was automatically thrown to the rear, thereby lifting a valve off its seat, allowing my compressed air (which previously had been packed away in my air flask) to escape through my tail and thereby causing my machinery to run at terrific speed. As previously arranged by the naval gunners I descended to a depth of 18 feet and then straightened out on my course. My course was followed as straight as a die for the whole run of 10,000 yards, not deviating two feet on either side. My machinery worked like a clock and I knew that my run was being anxiously followed by the gunners who were looking through binoculars from the deck of the submarine.

At the completion of my run I came to the surface, whereupon I discovered that I had been fired at a target at an 8,000 yard range and that I had passed directly under the center of the target, making a perfect run which is known as a "bull's-eye." I had a very short time to remain in the trough of the sea to be wallowed around for, within a very few minutes, one of the Navy's 50 foot speed boats had caught up to me and soon had me in tow back to the submarine.

Upon my arrival there I was greeted with cheers, much laughing and talking, for I had brought the first Navy Prize for submarines, amounting to twenty dollars to each one of the gunners who helped to have me make the bull's-eye.

DEFENSE COUNCIL ASKS CAUTION WITH FIRES

Benjamin Ide Wheeler, as chairman of the committee on resources and food supply of the state council of defense, has issued an appeal for caution against forest fires.

"Fires in the forests, the grass and brush lands and the grain fields, such as occur annually, in our California dry season, cause a loss of grain, of forage for cattle and sheep, and of wood and lumber," the statement says.

"We have become used to such fires and take them too much for granted. This year any fire burning uncontrolled means a loss in resources, money and labor that are needed for the building of ships, feeding people and live stock, and planting and harvesting our crops."

NO USE FOR HIM

The handsome young minister always stationed himself at the church door after the service in order to greet his parishioners as they filed out. Having thus properly placed the minister, Harper's Magazine continues:

One Sabbath morning along came a raw Swedish maid, a stranger, so with his usual cordiality, the minister said, as he grasped her hand:

"I am very glad to see you here this morning. Will you not tell me your name and address, so that I may call on you soon?"

The maid looked him coldly in the eye and withdrawing her hand, replied:

"Thank you, but I got one steady job already; he come twice week; I thank he no like you to come."

SOM MINING

"Well, Rastus, I hear you are working again. What business are you engaged in?"

"I've done engaged in de minin' business, sah."

"What kind of mining are you doing, gold, silver or diamonds?"

"I've doin' kalsominin, sah."

Comus.

WE HAVE BEGUN

America's first step in the actual participation in the war is now taken. General Pershing with his staff is in England to take the preliminary steps for the division which is to follow and which he is to command. This task of course will be first to agree with the allies as to just which portion of the line American troops are to hold, and what arrangements can be made for effectively co-ordinating action, and second, to make all the preparations for getting the troops to that line and supplying, equipping and administering them when they are there. It is a big task, for which the time available is none too long. General Pershing, being a gentleman and a soldier of admirable reserve, was doubtless too courteous to express his true opinion of the scheme of various high society feminine American expatriates in London to occupy most of this time in putting General Pershing and his associates on exhibition at their social functions.

We are proud of General Pershing and we shall be proud of his division of troops. But think now what it would have meant if instead of Pershing and his efficient staff of subordinate officials it had been Pershing or Leonard Wood with the same staff of subordinate officials and Colonel Theodore Roosevelt among them, or Pershing and his staff in London making arrangements on that side for a division of whose recruiting Roosevelt was in charge on this side. The purpose of this division at best is moral. It can hold at most but a few miles of line at the front, and England and France are already equipped to hold those miles. It can make no decisive advance and it can not alter the general situation enough to make advances elsewhere much easier or more profitable. But it can guarantee to Europe that the American democracy is not going to follow the Russian democracy in welching on the job. That guarantee Pershing and his division will give, but that guarantee a hundred times more impressively Pershing, or anybody, at the head of a Roosevelt division, would have given.—Monrovia News.

OUR LATEST ALLY

There wasn't very much fuss made over the announcement that we had gained another ally the other day. But we have whether we know it or not. Another nation is in arms; another republic has arrayed itself against Germany.

The new ally is the republic of Tavolara, a small island situated northeast of Sardinia. It counted 170 inhabitants at the last census.

This new ally is not nearly so interesting as an ally as it is in history. Tavolara was known to the Romans as Bucina, and famed for its pearl fisheries. Until 1882, it was an absolute monarchy, the last sovereign being Paul I. Upon his death a revolution broke out and the island became a republic under the protection of Italy. The republic's president is elected for ten years and women have the right to vote.

The reason Tavolara is at war is the destruction of one of the republic's fishing boats by a mine. Was was declared without any writing, and all the sturdy men have taken up arms under their own banner.

Tavolara is not going to decide the war one way or the other, but the war may decide Tavolara.—Fresno Herald.

DIXIE

The United States overseas army bands will play at least one tune that will strike upon the ears of the allied armies quite as familiarly as if it were one of their own national favorites. And there is no better quickest in existence. It is not going too far to say that all the world knows the air of "Dixie," but it would be drawing it a trifle too strongly to assert that all the world knows its words. The truth is, they are as little known in the United States as the words of "The Star-Spangled Banner," "America," and "Hail Columbia." While "Dixie" is the adopted patriotic air of the Southern States, the average Southerner, who rises to it loyally on all occasions, is content to hear it played.

The words, beyond breathing affection for the home land, such as is common to the patriotic songs of all countries, have no deep significance. They were composed by Dan Emmett, a "burrhead" performer, to fit a "walk-around," also of his composition, and, as first sung by the famous Negro Minstrels, in 1859, included the following:

I wish I was in de land of cotton,
Old times der am not forgotten.
Look away, look away,
Look away, Dixie Land.

In Dixie Land where I was born in,
Early on one frosty mornin';
Look away, look away,
Look away, Dixie Land.

Look away, Dixie Land.
The catchy and best remembered line in the song—
Cinnamon seed and sandy bottom was substituted later by Emmett for the second line in the original.—Christian Science Monitor.

ROUTES TO BEAR VALLEY IN GOOD CONDITION

According to information received recently at the headquarters of the Automobile club of Southern California, all three routes leading into Bear valley are open and in good condition. The Victorville route is in fair condition. The Crest route, which was made quite chunky a short time ago by rains, is again being smoothed out and is not at all bad at this writing. The portion of this route from San Bernardino to a point between Baldwin lake and Big Bear lake, has been taken over by the state and will hereafter be known as a state highway. The entire 101-mile trip has just been resign-posted by the signing crew of the Automobile club of Southern California.

The Mill Creek Canyon road which runs out of Redlands is very acceptable as to condition at this time, although a little sandy on the turns. The supervisors of San Bernardino county have just installed a control system on a portion of this route and all machines going up or down will have to do so under control. The control hours for machines going up are 6, 8, 10, 12, 2, 4, 6 o'clock, while the going down hours are 7, 9, 11, 1, 3, 5 and 7 o'clock. A man has been placed at Kate Harvey ranch, in Mountain Hope canyon, where the control for the valley end will start, and another man has been placed at the summit of the Mill creek road.

DECORATED BUT CAN'T TELL WHY

(By United Press)

LONDON, June 10 (By mail)—Commander Gordon Campbell, mysterious hero of the British navy, leaped 700 junior naval officers in promotion, became a member of the Distinguished Service Order and was decorated with the Victoria Cross in less than a year and a half. Yet, with a storm raging around his secret career, he is bound by naval ethics not to tell publicly how he won either his promotion or the high honors bestowed by King George.

Curiosity started mildly, but when Campbell and the Admiralty remained silent, the demand for information reached the proportion of a public uproar. Campbell is not criticized, exactly; the public really wants a chance to sing his praises. The music is ready but English hero worshippers refuse to sing a song without words, which makes the present demonstration a clamor instead of a popular laudation.

A high official of the Admiralty to-day assured the United Press that Campbell's achievements and bravery during the war deserve every ray of honor turned upon him. When the war is over the people may know what he did and how he did it, but for the time being his deeds must remain behind the veil.

Just recently his name appeared in the Court Circular as the recipient of the Victoria Cross, highest of all honors for sheer bravery, so Campbell must have found something more exciting than the command of the Bittern.

"Not this year," answered Farmer Cornstossel. "I don't propose to let city folks off that easy. I'm going to take 'em as pupils in agriculture and make 'em pay for the opportunity to do some farmin'."—Washington Star.

ONE OF THE OLDEST MEXICANS OF STATE PASSES AWAY

Macedonio Soto, one of the oldest Mexicans in this section of the state, perhaps, died near Castia on June 17 of valvular heart disease.

He was generally believed to be considerably over 100 years old, some of the residents in that vicinity even claiming that he was 120, but no record of his birth could be found. He had undoubtedly lived a hundred years or more.

He died at the home of J. M. Urtaun near Saugus and was buried in San Francisco canyon. No known relatives are left.

MUSHROOM TIPS

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Inexpert persons who insist on collecting "mushrooms" and afterward die of regret—and poison—on learning they picked the poisonous kind, are warned by the department of agriculture that there is no simple test for distinguishing the eatable from the other.

For example, the common belief that any mushroom may be eaten with safety if the skin can be peeled readily from the cap is unfounded. The same peeling is possible with many poisonous species.

The presence of insects on mushrooms, too, is no proof they are safe for human consumption. The common belief that if mushrooms are soaked or boiled in salt water they will do no harm, also is a dangerous and unfounded suggestion.

DETROIT, June 25.—Johann Wilhelm, nephew of the Kaiser, would take up the gun against Germany— if the age limit of selective service were raised to include him. Count von Hohenzollern is his title.

He was born in Detroit and has been here for the last seven years. The Count's identity was disclosed when he applied to Marshal Behrendt for permission to enter districts restricted to Germans. While he spent the greater part of his forty-seven years in Germany, Johann was born here while his parents were touring the United States. His father is a brother of Bill Hohenzollern.

BRIEF AND TO POINT

What is considered by jurists and legal lights as probably the shortest session of the California state supreme court and one of the shortest appeal court decisions in the United States, is that of the state supreme court in the case of Ferdinand Chaudins.

Chaudins petitioned for a writ of prohibition to prevent the mayor and city clerk of Oakland from enforcing the draft act. The supreme court decision in the case was as follows: "The claim is utterly without merit."

In just six words the supreme court settled for all time the question of the legality of the draft act of 1917, by which men will be selected in September for service in the war.—Riverside Press.
